877. You can watch the film if you promise ... to bed straight afterwards.
- a. going
  - б. to be going

- B. to go
  - Г. to have gone
878. Lexicon, grammar, phonology are
- a. the use of language in oral/written form
  - б. language resources
  - B. verbal communication
  - Г. elements of communication
879. The prosodic systems are
- a. referred to as elements of communication
  - б. studied by phonology
  - B. called a verbal code
  - Г. identified with oral communication
880. Phonetics deals with
- a. systems of oral/written symbols
  - б. the phenomena of oral speech
  - B. the units of language
  - Г. distinctive features of phonemes and morphemes
881. The units of speech are
- a. utterance, sentence, intonation group, rhythmic unit, syllable, sound, articulatory feature
  - б. utterance, intonation group, rhythmic unit, syllable, sound, articulatory feature
  - B. utterance, intonation group, rhythmic unit, syllable, phoneme, articulatory feature
  - Г. utterance, intonation group, rhythmic unit, syllable, sound, distinctive feature
882. Positions and movements of speech organs in the production of sounds are studied by
- a. acoustic phonetics
  - б. articulatory phonetics
  - B. auditory phonetics
  - Г. phonology
883. Articulatory phonetics studies such phenomena as
- a. frequency, spectrum, intensity
  - б. respiration, phonation, articulation
  - B. pitch, loudness, length
  - Г. phonemes
884. Fundamental frequency determines
- a. the amplitude of vibration
  - б. the pitch of voice
  - B. the time of vibration
  - Г. the vibration of the vocal folds
885. Phonology studies
- a. the distribution and grouping of phonemes in syllables
  - б. the sound system of language and the system of prosodic features
  - B. the acoustic properties of speech
  - Г. the perceptible properties of speech
886. One of the articulatory principles of classification of speech sounds is

- a. tone with an admixture of noise
- б. the presence/absence of obstruction
- в. periodic vibrations
- г. non-periodic vibrations

887. In the production of consonants,

- a. the force of air stream is weak
- б. the removal of obstruction causes noise
- в. muscular tension is spread evenly throughout the speech organs
- г. there is no obstruction

888. Voiceless consonants are

- a. noises with an admixture of tone
- б. pure noises
- в. tone with an admixture of noise
- г. based on voice

889. Sonants are

- a. pure noises
- б. tone with an admixture of noise
- в. based on noise
- г. pure tone

890. Diphthongs are

- a. consonants
- б. vowels
- в. sonants
- г. triphthongs

891. Vowels are classified as rounded/unrounded according to

- a. length
- б. the position of lips
- в. vertical movement of the tongue
- г. the degree of muscular tension

892. /ɪə/ is

- a. a closing diphthong
- б. a centering diphthong
- в. a free diphthong
- г. a checked diphthong

893. /əʊ/ is

- a. a centering diphthong
- б. a closing diphthong
- в. a free vowel
- г. a checked vowel

894. /ɔ:/ is

- a. a back advanced vowel, narrow variation
- б. an open vowel, narrow variation

- b. a central vowel, narrow variation
- г. a mid-open vowel, narrow variation

895. /ʊ/ is

- a. a back advanced, mid-open vowel, broad variation
- б. a back advanced, close vowel, broad variation
- в. a back, close vowel, broad variation
- г. a back, close vowel, narrow variation

896. /ɪ/ is

- a. a front, close vowel, broad variation
- б. a front retracted, close vowel, broad variation
- в. a front, close vowel, narrow variation
- г. a front retracted, close vowel, narrow variation

897. The types of obstruction in the pronunciation of English consonants are

- a. plosion, friction, plosion-friction
- б. occlusion, constriction, occlusion-constriction
- в. plosive, fricative, affricate
- г. the manner of production of noise

898. According to the criteria of the active speech organ and the place of obstruction, consonants are divided into

- a. occlusives, constrictives, affricates
- б. labial, lingual, glottal
- в. plosives, fricatives, sonants
- г. labio-dental fricatives, palato-alveolar affricates

899. /p/ and /b/ are

- a. labial, bilabial; occlusives, sonants
- б. labial, bilabial; occlusives, plosives
- в. lingual, forelingual, interdental; fricatives
- г. glottal; constrictives, fricatives

900. /n/ is

- a. lingual, forelingual, post-alveolar; occlusive, nasal sonant
- б. lingual, forelingual, alveolar; occlusive, nasal sonant
- в. lingual, forelingual, palato-alveolar; occlusive, nasal sonant
- г. lingual, forelingual, alveolar; constrictive, sonant

901. /f/ and /v/ are

- a. labial, bilabial; constrictives, fricatives
- б. labial, labio-dental; constrictives, fricatives
- в. lingual, forelingual, alveolar; constrictives, fricatives
- г. lingual, backlingual, velar; occlusives, plosives

902. /θ/ and /ð/ are

- a. lingual, forelingual, alveolar; constrictives, fricatives
- б. lingual, forelingual, interdental; constrictives, fricatives
- в. lingual, forelingual, palato-alveolar; constrictives, fricatives
- г. labial, labio-dental; constrictives, fricatives

903. /tʃ/ and /dʒ/ are

- a. lingual, forelingual, palato-alveolar; constrictives
- б. lingual, forelingual, palato-alveolar; affricates
- в. lingual, backlingual, velar; occlusives, plosives
- г. labial, bilabial; occlusives, plosives

904. /ŋ/ is

- a. lingual, forelingual, alveolar; occlusive
- б. lingual, backlingual, velar; occlusive, nasal sonant
- в. lingual, bilabial; occlusive, nasal sonant
- г. lingual, bilabial; constrictive, nasal sonant

905. /w/ is

- a. labial, labio-dental; constrictive, fricative
- б. labial, bilabial; constrictive sonant
- в. lingual, forelingual, alveolar; constrictive, sonant
- г. lingual, medio-lingual, palatal; constrictive, sonant

906. /ʃ/ and /ʒ/ are

- a. lingual, forelingual, palato-alveolar; occlusive, fricatives
- б. lingual, forelingual, palato-alveolar; constrictives, fricatives
- в. lingual, forelingual, alveolar; constrictives, fricatives
- г. glottal; constrictives, fricatives

907. /r/ is

- a. lingual, forelingual, alveolar; constrictive, sonant
- б. lingual, forelingual, post-alveolar; constrictive, sonant
- в. lingual, medio-lingual, palatal; constrictive, sonant
- г. labial, bilabial; constrictive, sonant

908. Fortis consonants are

- a. voiced consonants
- б. voiceless consonants
- в. nasal consonants
- г. sonants

909. Lenis consonants are

- a. voiceless consonants
- б. voiced consonants
- в. nasal consonants
- г. sonants

910. Phonemes are

- a. sound clusters
- б. sound types
- в. bundles of sounds
- г. allophones

911. Phonemes are sometimes called

- a. bundles of redundant features
- б. bundles of phonetic distinctive features

- v. allophones in free variation
- г. allophones in complementary distribution

912. Allophones are

- a. bundles of phonetic distinctive features
- б. variants of phonemes
- v. bundles of relevant features
- г. variants of redundant features

913. Distinctive features of the phoneme

- a. are irrelevant features
- б. are articulatory features that change the meaning of a word
- v. do not change the meaning of a word
- г. change the meaning of a word, but do not distinguish a phoneme from other phonemes

914. Minimal pairs are

- a. vowels and consonants
- б. are two words that differ in one phoneme
- v. phonemes and allophones
- г. types of transcription

915. Redundant features of a phoneme

- a. help to establish the system of phonemes in a language
- б. do not help to distinguish one phoneme from other phonemes
- v. depend on the force of articulation
- г. depend on the place of obstruction

916. In unstressed syllables, the articulation of vowels is weakened and the duration is shortened. This phenomenon is called

- a. elision
- б. reduction
- v. liason
- г. accomodation

917. In rapid/careless speech, sounds may be left out. This phenomenon is called

- a. liason
- б. elision
- v. accommodation
- г. assimilation

918. A sound may be introduced between words to link them. This phenomenon is called

- a. elision
- б. liason
- v. accommodation
- г. assimilation

919. Adapting the articulation of a consonant to a neighbouring vowel or vice versa is called

- a. assimilation
- б. accommodation
- v. elision
- г. liason

920. A consonant may lose some of its features and acquire some features of a neighbouring consonant. This phenomenon is called

- a. accomodation
- б. assimilation
- в. reduction
- г. elision

921. Two neighbouring sounds may influence each other. This phenomenon is called

- a. double assimilation
- б. coalescent assimilation
- в. full assimilation
- г. partial assimilation

922. The smallest units into which speech continuum is divided are

- a. phonemes
- б. syllables
- в. tone groups
- г. rhythmic units

923. In all languages, the syllable has articulatory, acoustic and auditory features. That is why the syllable is

- a. a phonological unit
- б. a phonetic unit
- в. an abstract unit
- г. a morphological unit

924. Each language has its own rules of combining phonemes into syllables. That is why, the syllable is

- a. a phonetic unit
- б. a phonological unit
- в. an abstract unit
- г. a morphological unit

925. According to the relative sonority theory of syllable formation,

- a. a syllable is pronounced in one chest pulse
- б. the peak of the syllable is the sound with the greatest degree of sonority
- в. the syllable is the combination of a sonant and vowel
- г. fricatives are less sonorous than stops

926. According to the muscular tension theory of syllable formation,

- a. muscular tension is a more important factor than the sonority of sounds
- б. the syllable is an ark of muscular tension
- в. vowels are more important than consonants
- г. vowels are always surrounded by consonants

927. The syllabic sounds are

- a. vowels and the sonants /m/, /n/, /ŋ/
- б. vowels and the sonants /m/, /n/, /l/
- в. vowels and consonants
- г. the sonants /m/, /n/, /ŋ/, /l/, /r/, /w/, /j/

928. The coda is
- the peak of the syllable
  - non-syllabic element(s) following the peak of the syllable
  - the central element(s) of the syllable
  - the nucleus of the syllable
929. The only consonant that never occurs in the initial position (before a vowel) in a syllable is
- /dʒ/
  - /ŋ/
  - /tʃ/
  - /j/
930. In an English syllable, there may be
- up to four consonants before and after a vowel
  - up to three consonants before and up to four consonants after a vowel
  - up to three consonants before and after a vowel
  - up to four consonants before and up to three consonants after a vowel
931. The phonotactic constraint on syllabification means that
- there may be only three consonants before a vowel in a syllable
  - in syllable division, we should avoid consonant clusters which are not found in words in isolation
  - consonants are never the nucleus of the syllable
  - only vowels can be the nucleus of the syllable
932. In the syllable division, we should avoid creating consonant clusters which are not found in words in isolation, i.e. consonant clusters which
- precede a vowel
  - are not possible in the initial and final position in a word
  - follow a vowel
  - are possible in the initial and final position in a word
933. The basic elements of the phonetic structure of the word are
- the morpheme, the syllabic structure, a definite stress pattern
  - the sounds, the syllabic structure, a definite stress pattern
  - the sounds, the syllabic structure, a definite word pattern
  - the sounds, the word structure, a definite stress pattern
934. The stress pattern of a word is
- one prominent syllable
  - the correlation of degrees of prominence in a word
  - the correlation of syllables in a word
  - two prominent syllables
935. As lexical units, monosyllabic words
- have a correlation of degrees of prominence
  - are considered to be stressed
  - have no stress pattern and are not stressed
  - are considered to be unstressed
936. The auditory features responsible for the effect of word stress are

- a. a greater degree of loudness, a greater length of a stressed syllable, variations in frequency and formant structure
  - б. a greater degree of loudness, a greater length of a stressed syllable, modifications in the pitch and quality
  - в. variations in intensity, a greater length of a stressed syllable, modifications in the pitch and quality
  - г. a greater degree of loudness, variations in rhythm, modifications in pitch and quality
937. A polysyllabic word has
- a. two stressed syllables
  - б. as many degrees of prominence as there are syllables in it
  - в. equal degrees of prominence in all syllables
  - г. two to four degrees of prominence
938. The recessive word stress tendency
- a. manifests itself in shifting the stress onto the third syllable from the end
  - б. manifests itself in stressing the root syllable
  - в. means that borrowed polysyllabic words have a secondary stress on the third syllable from the end
  - г. means that the stress of the parent word is often retained in the derivatives
939. The rhythmic word stress tendency
- a. means that the stress of the parent word is often retained in the derivatives
  - б. manifests itself in shifting the stress onto the third syllable from the end
  - в. manifests itself in the fact that the most important elements in words are stressed
  - г. manifests itself in the fact that there are as many degrees of stress in a word as there are syllables in it
940. The retentive word stress tendency
- a. manifests itself in shifting the stress onto the third syllable from the end
  - б. manifests itself in the fact that the stress of the parent word is often retained in the derivatives
  - в. means that the most important elements in words are stressed
  - г. means that borrowed polysyllabic words have a secondary stress on the third syllable from the end
941. The stress patterns of the bulk of English words are regular. It means that
- a. English word stress is free
  - б. English word stress is stable
  - в. English word stress is not fixed to any particular syllable
  - г. English word stress is fixed to a particular syllable
942. Late stress in compound words/phrases is
- a. the primary stress on the first element
  - б. the primary stress on the final element
  - в. the secondary stress on the final element
  - г. the secondary stress on the first element
943. Prosody is a unity of non-segmental phenomena:
- a. speech melody, word stress, tempo, rhythm, pauses
  - б. speech melody, utterance stress, tempo, rhythm, pauses
  - в. pitch range, utterance stress, tempo, rhythm, pauses
  - г. speech melody, utterance stress, tempo, rhythm, pauses of perception

944. Prosodic features are
- syllables, rhythmic units, tone groups, utterances
  - speech melody, utterance stress, tempo, rhythm, pauses
  - prosody and intonation
  - level tone, word stress, tempo, rhythm, pauses
945. The rhythmic unit
- can contain one or more tone groups
  - can coincide with a tone group
  - is the nucleus of the tone group
  - is the terminal tone of the tone group
946. The rhythmic unit
- has no nucleus
  - has its own pitch pattern, accent and rhythm pattern, duration
  - always contains proclitics and enclitics
  - has primary, secondary and weak rhythm patterns
947. Utterances are divided into tone groups according to
- their proclitics and enclitics
  - their grammatical structure and meaning
  - stressed and accented words
  - the meaning of stressed but unaccented words
948. According to O'Connor and Arnold, tune is
- a single-syllable word group
  - a complete pitch pattern of a word group
  - a rising pitch movement
  - a falling tone
949. From a phonetic perspective, the central element of a tone group is
- a word
  - a stressed syllable in a word marked by a change in pitch
  - any stressed syllable in a word
  - a stressed but unaccented syllable
950. According to O'Connor and Arnold, the tone group is
- the combination of falling and rising tones
  - a group of tunes that have one or more pitch features in common and convey the same attitude on the part of the speaker
  - a part of an utterance that convey the same attitude on the part of the speaker
  - the pitch features of prosody
951. According to O'Connor and Arnold, the nucleus of the tone group is
- is always preceded by a pre-head and head
  - the stressed syllable in the last accented word
  - the terminal tone
  - the stressed and unstressed syllables in the last accented word
952. According to O'Connor and Arnold, the head of the tone group

- a. begins with the first stressed syllable and ends with the syllable preceding the nucleus
  - б. begins with the stressed syllable of the first accented word and ends with the syllable preceding the nucleus
